WINTER WILL NOT STOP ALLIES AGGRESSIVE ACTION AGAINST HUN

(By Associated Press) WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Oct. 2.—Marshal Foch is the only man who knows just what move he is planning for tomorrow or next week or next month, but there is growing in the fighting armies a feeling that the German is not going to be permitted to rest this winter.

Fight in good weather and dig in for the bad has become almost an accepted principle in this war. Men trained in the theory of war prior to 1914 and in its practice since have agreed every year to the uselessness of attempting to drive the enemy from its trenches once the rain and sleet and snow set in, but there are indications that the initiative taken by the allies in July will be retained regardless of bad weather.

REPORT SHOWS POOR CONDITION OF COTTON

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The department of agriculture has estimated the cotton crop at 11,818,000 equivalents of 500 pound bales. Condition of the crop September 25th was 54 4-10 per cent normal with a yield of 154 pounds to the acre forecast. The condition of the average California 90 acres is a yield of 418 pounds. In Arizona 93 acres will yield 263 pounds. Cotton ginned prior to September 25th amounted to 3,719,915 bales counting round as half bales. Ginning in California 4571; Arizona 1204. Ginnings for the same date last year amounted to 2,511,658.

If Marshal Foch calls upon his army groups to continue jumping at the Germans they will and they will do it as they did in the early part of the war for, in addition to the reinforcement that American has provided, there is a spirit revived. The French are fighting with a confidence restored and the British are going in with greater enthusiasm than had been apparent for many months. They are not merely "carrying on." They are slashing away like one does when he knows there is another one right by his side hitting just as hard.

The Germans are not exhausted. They are not so badly fed. Their clothing is not so bad and they probably have plenty of ammunition notwithstanding the enormous stores they have abandoned. But there is something wrong and men who have commanded troops in the recent Franco-American-British offensives are inclined to believe it is the realization by the people of Germany of the hopelessness of keeping up the fight against a foe who obviously is growing stronger instead of weaker.

St. Quentin has been broken. It is uncertain what lines the enemy has in the rear.

The British advance threatens the German line of retreat in the Oise valley and the massif of St. Gobain. The French in the last three days advanced three or four miles on a front of ten miles between the Aisne and Vesle.

The Germans are retreating toward the line held in 1917. In view of the loss of St. Quentin and lines northward a German retirement on a fairly large scale seems probable. Big changes on the western front before winter are likely if the weather continues favorable.

(By Associated Press) PARIS, Oct. 2.—The French have passed beyond St. Quentin, and according to the Havas News Agency hold the line running along the Somme from Tranquoy to Rouvray, then along the St. Quentin-Lefere road to the Oise at Venduilly. The fall of St. Quentin, the cornerstone of the Hindenburg system, shakes the whole German system. The strong push being made along the upper Oise valley will accentuate the widespread effect.

The allies have crossed the multiple waterways and open country, ideal for tanks, lies ahead.

A general German retreat is becoming more imperative. Ludendorff's problem is to prevent it becoming a disaster which is the usual sequel to retreats of masses closely engaged in a formidable struggle.

(By Associated Press) PARIS, Oct. 2.—(Havas Agency)—The Menin and Roulers railway junctions in Flanders have been set afire by the Germans.
